SADELLE & SID SIEGEL

No one loved Las Vegas more than Sid Siegel. Over a span of 30 years, he traveled across the country more than 500 times from his home in Florida to visit this desert playground of amazing restaurants, fabulous hotels and world-class casinos and entertainment. But this was not a one-sided relationship, for as much as Sid loved Vegas, Vegas loved Sid in return. Sid was an ambassador of goodwill who knew every stick man, pit boss or casino president by name, and he took genuine interest in their lives. "Mr. S", as the casino workers called him, became a beloved member of the Vegas culture. The Casino workers treated him with the greatest respect normally reserved for the highest of high rollers, even though he started out as a small-time player. As Sid would say, "I started coming out here when I couldn't afford to lose. I used to sign $200 and $300 markers. But, I got to be a big shot and now I've got big credit at these places."

While Sid loved Vegas, the true love of his life was his wife, Sadelle, who he met on a blind date in 1928. After getting married in 1930, they moved to Miami in 1945 and opened a small grocery store on South Beach. Over the years they took more than 150 cruises from Miami to Nassau on the Bahama Star cruise ship, a record that still stands to this day. In honor of their travel, the Bahama Star named Sid an honorary Captain and Sadelle an honorary first mate. While the pair traveled all over the world to places like Hong Kong, Germany and Australia, no place on earth compared to their fabulous home away from home – Las Vegas.

While the Siegel's loved to live like high rollers, they loved a good bargain even more. When they visited Vegas, every morning they would walk a mile to Mr. Sy's Casino to make their free three-minute phone call to their children in Florida. They also loved the junkets – an old school casino marketing program that filled planes with gamblers from all over the country. About twice a month, Sid and Sadelle would hop on a junketeers plane and head straight to Vegas. Once they landed, Sid would go right to his favorite game – the craps tables. Sid's passion was craps and he would proudly say, "Craps is my hobby. Some people play tennis. Other people play golf. Me, I like to shoot craps".

Sid was recognized and respected by almost everyone in Vegas. He was known for his kind heart, sense of humor and most of all, for his love for gaming. Sid and Sadelle were so adored in Las Vegas that on their 50th wedding anniversary, Bill Briare, the mayor of Las Vegas at the time, gave them the key to the city and the Las Vegas Sun printed a full-page photo of them in the newspaper's December 31, 1980 edition that was signed by all of the legendary casino owners in Las Vegas.

No one knew Las Vegas better than Sid did. He was a true Vegas connoisseur who knew everything about this great city. Sid loved the casinos and the hotels but most of all, he loved the dining. He was known for his exacting standards, especially when it came to soup. You better bring it out hot, or it would go right back to the kitchen. Who better to model quality and service after than a man that knew everything about the standards of dining in Las Vegas? At Sid's Café, you'll experience an unprecedented menu, a luxurious yet comfortable seating environment and, just like "Mr. S", you will be treated like a high roller. In honor of Sid comes a beautiful restaurant for friends to gather, casino players to dine and memories to be made. Relax and stay a while. Welcome to Sid's.
